Planning By Design

Planning By Design is a leading UK-wide planning and design consultancy founded in 2021, delivering architectural and planning expertise for residential, commercial and regeneration projects. The London-based firm brings together chartered architects, town planners, customer service advisors and administrators to support clients through every stage of development. The consultancy provides transparent guidance, tailored solutions and detailed project management, helping homeowners, developers and land professionals navigate complex planning requirements. Its services cover architectural drawings, planning applications, design development and strategic advice, with a focus on practical outcomes, quality design and efficient delivery throughout each stage.

Planning By Design integrates architectural design and planning consultancy through a multidisciplinary team, allowing projects to progress seamlessly from initial concepts to planning approval. The consultancy produces detailed 2D and 3D architectural drawings, realistic visualisations, interior designs and advanced BIM models that enable clients to explore proposals before construction begins. These tools support informed decision-making, improve collaboration between stakeholders and help identify potential challenges at an early stage. The company also delivers solutions for projects ranging from home extensions and new-build properties to large-scale commercial and urban developments, ensuring each scheme balances functionality, sustainability and long-term value.

The judging panel was particularly impressed by Planning By Design's commitment to delivering accessible and comprehensive expertise across the full project journey. The company's architects and planners collaborate closely with clients to develop designs that balance ambition with compliance, ensuring proposals are both visually considered and aligned with planning expectations. Through its combination of architectural skill, planning insight and client-focused service, Planning By Design continues to provide valuable support for those seeking to transform ideas into successful developments. Its approach reflects a dedication to thoughtful design, clear communication and consistent professional standards across every project it undertakes, while maintaining delivery for clients.
